THE EVENING CRITIC. ESTABLISHED AUGUST, 1868.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Hichael Strogoff."

To-night at the National Theatre the last opportunity is given to see the famous spectacular drama of "Michael Strogoff."

All of our citizens should take advantage of the occasion, as it is rare that so excellent a play is presented in our city.

"Widow Bedott." At the Opera-house Petroleum V. Nasby's comedy of "Widow Bedott" will be pre-sented for the last time this afternoon and night. The comedy is not very clever, but the acting is excellent, the artists being all of first-class character.

Pord's Opera-house.

Minnie Palmer, the beautiful and gifted little actress, supported by R. E. Graham and a fine troupe, appears in "My Sweetheart" at Ford's Opera-house next week.

Minnie Palmer is by many regarded as a more attractive actress in her special line than Lotta, and her play is eleverly conceived and excellently executed. There will be matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

The Insolence of Petty Office. As a rule our colored policemen are a credit to the police force of the District. credit to the police force of the District. They are generally courteous, unpresuming and polite. There is, how ever, one notable exception to this rule, and that is one Fisher, a coal-black, insolent fellow belonging to the Georgetown Precinct. He was doing duty yesterday on the Avenue between Nineteenth and Twentieth streets, and while the procession was passing amused himself by insulting in the grossest manner possible ladies and gentlemen who were standing on the sidewalk viewing the procession as it passed. This fellow would rudely catch hold of people and without a word shove them back a distance of five or six feet, almost knocking his victims to the ground. In the future

tance of five or six feet, almost knocking his victims to the ground. In the future Fisher should be detailed to do duty in Cherry alley or some other delectable locality where he will be out of the way of decent people. Major Brock will do well to keep the insolent Fisher in the background in the future, for sometime he may try the shoving business on somebody who is not to be shoved—not even by a policeman—and be shoved—not even by a policeman—and then the police force may be short just one

The Pireworks Last Night.

The French and German visitors viewed the grand pyrotechnic display in the Monu-ment Lot last night from the south balcony of the Department of State. The Marine band was stationed near by, and discoursed music during the evening. The display was wit-ressed by a very large concerns of people. during the evening. The display was witnessed by a very large concourse of people. Every house top and window in the vicinity was thronged with people. The programme, previously published in The Critic, was faithfully carried out. Rockets and bombs were sent up from the apex of the mounment, and set pieces and other features were exhibited from the base, forming in all a magnificent spectacle, the like of which was never witnessed here before. The set piece, displaying large portraits of Washington and Lafayette, elicited great enthusiasm. Columbia was received with voeiferous cheering, and the wildest delight was manifested at the gor geous representation of Niagara Falls. The finale, 1,000 rockets representing a floral bouquet, con-upon his clevated position, and with a book containing the rules of the Senate, hides his face so that little Tommy Bayard cannot see him laugh, for he is just "biling" over because he knocked the pins from under Tommy.

Four mounds of earth lie side by side, Where summer sunshine far and wide Its largess throws. No dismal shade From cypress or from yew is made: The sweetbrier trails across the sward Where happy hearted dasties guard From rude approach the preclous sod That lies upon that hill of God.
An hundred throats their carols pour From out a full, exhaustless store, As if their rapture bore along Refrain from one undying song.
The light, the song, the roses breath Preclude the gloom and chill of death, As calm—and still—the holy dust. A waits the rescued spirits' trust; And joyous life upspringeth fair Where they have climbed the heavenly stair.

Can love from out our lives be lost, whose fibers with our own have crossed? Are yon bright angels' brown more fair.

'Neath glory of the haloed hate.

Than when they bent to me below, All glistening with the Paschal snow? Do they—in happy life above—
Forget their ministry of love?

Forget their ministry of love?

Though years on years of silence fall since they have answered to my call, their coning footsteps still hear, (And stretch my arms to draw them near). Their garments rustle on the stair, Their tender accents thrill the air; so close they seem, so calm, so bright, The lonely way is touched with light!

The paper which Guiteau intended to read in the court yesterday was as follows:

"If the Court please, I wish to say that I have been terribly vilified by the press, and it has made some persons bitter and impulsive against me. On October 6 the New York Herald published seven columns from an autobiography which I expect to issue soon in a book. Aside from the impertinent statement that I am a creature of the greatest vanity and that I crave notoriety, which are absolutely false, and similar unkind statements, I am indebted to the reporter and the Herald for giving me so fair a hearing. I plead not guilty to the indictment, and my defense is three-fold.

"First—Insanity, in that it was God's act and not mine. The Divine pressure on me to remove the President was so enormous that it destroyed my free agency, and therefore I am not legally responsible for my act.

"Second.—The President died from main died. Therefore I say he was not fitally shot. If he had been well treated he would have recovered.

"Third—The President died in New Jersey, and therefore beyond the jurisdiction of this court. This malpractice and President's death in New Jersey are special providences, and I am bound to avail myself of them on my trial, in justice to the Lord and myself. I undertake to say that the Lord is managing my case with consummate ability, and that He had a special object in allowing the President to die in New Jersey. His management of this case is worthy of Him as the Deity, and I have entire confidence in His disposition to protect me and send me forth to the world a free and vindicated man. 'He uttered His voice,' says the Psalmist, 'and the carth melted.' This is the God I served when I sought to remove the President. The Lord and the people do not seem to agree in this case. The people consider the President's removal an unbearable outrage and me a dastardly assassin, and they prayed the Lord to spare the President. For nearly three months the Lord kept the President at the point of death and then allowed him to depart, thereby confirming my act. The mere fact of the President's death is nothing. All men have died, and all men will die. Gen. Burnside died suddenly about the time the President died from malpraction and Gen. Burnside were both splendid men, and no one regrets their departure more than I. The President died from malprac-and no one regrets their departure more than I. The President died from malprac-tice, and Gen. Burnside from apoplexy. Both were special providences, and the peo-ple ought to quietly submit to the Lord in the matter. The President would not have died had the Lord not have wished him to on. I have no conception of it as a nurder go. I have no conception of it as a murder or as an assassination. I had no feeling of wrong-doing when I sought to remove him, because it was God's act, and not mine, for the good of the American people. I plead not guilty to the indictment."

In consequence of the parade in honor of the French visitors, the attendance at the Fair yesterday was very light. The members of the Reform School were present and seemed to enjoy the races and the other attractions hugely. The boys took a lively interest in the races. Driving Race for Gentlemen owners. Seven entries were made, but J. H. Morrow, who entered Little Joe, was objected to as being a professional driver, and in consequence did not enter. The following were the entries: Nellie (J. A. Plumley), Dixie (E. A. Fitzgerald), Ginger (T. A. Tachiffy), Woodstock (J. B. Hill), Dollie Davis (Wm. J. Burns). Woodstock and Dixie were the favorites in the beginning, but Ginger, to the surprise of almost every one present, won the race.

The Bartist ministers in Germany complain that the government has, during the last year, carried out a reactionary policy against them. Mr. Jahr, at Frankfort, has been fined for speaking at a grave of a deceased member. His Sunday-school has been prohibited because it meets at private houses, and teachers and persons who open their houses to Sunday-schools have been threatened with fine if they disregard the prohibition. THE BRITISH BLUNDER. What Parnell's Sister Says of His Ar-

A dispatch from Philadelphia, dated Ocer 14, mys:

A dispatch from Philadelphia, dated October 14, says:

"Charles Stewart Parnell should have been arrested a year ago," said Pannie Parnell, sister of the Irish agitator, to a reporter of the Philadelphia Press to-day. Miss Parnell, sister of the Irish agitator, to a reporter of the Philadelphia Press to-day. Miss Parnell was in the best of humor. "What I mean," said she, in explanation, "is that the English government committed a blunder, if they believed the Land League movement was of any moment, in not nipping it in the bud, instead of waiting until it had bloomed into a widespreading flower. Not that I wish they had been far seeing enough to do this—by no means. I am glad for another reason: My brother's arrest must silence forever the absurd suspicion that existed in a few disloyal minds that he was in collusion with the British government. Instead of checking the operations of the Land League, England has given it a fresh impetus. Instead of bringing obloquy upon Charles Stewart Parnell she has popularized him more than ever. "What a mistake it was, to be sure," continued Miss Parnell, laughing. "The idea of waiting until Ireland was permeated with the idea, from the Giant's Causeway to Cape Clear, until the whole civilized world was familiar with Ireland's protest, and Land League became a familiar household word. How absurd. Had England taken this step a year ago, as I said before, or even after the passage of the coercion act, it would in all probability have put a serious damper upon the Land League and its propogation if it did not kill it altogether. Now the opportunity has passed. From a puling infant the Land League movement has grown to be a giant. The lopping off of a finger cannot affect it. My brother's mission was so nearly ended that his ideas can be carried out perfectly." Miss Parnell went on to say that she thought the result of the arrest would be the abolition of trial by urry and most likely the his ideas can be carried out perfectly." Miss Parnell went on to say that she thought the result of the arrest would be the abolition of trial by jury, and most likely the rearrest of John Dillon, that bright political diamond who has stirred Irish blood into a knowledge of what Irish rights are. Jury trials are a dead-letter now.

"How was the news of the arrest received by Mrs. Parnell, your mother?" was asked.

"My mother worried over it somewhat."

was asked.

"My mother worried over it somewhat," was the reply, "because she looked at it as a personal grievance, while my first thought was of the probable effect on the country; and having once settled that in my mind I gave myself no more concern except as to my brother's health. I fear it may suffer, if he is kept confined for any length of time. Looking at the matter in a public light," said Miss Parnell, in conclusion, "I think that England has made a confession of fear, and that the cause will be benefited. of fear, and that the cause will be benefited and the Irish people drawn more closely to-gether by my brother's arrest."

If a person is illegally and unlawfully arrested by a policeman what redress has he? is a question that is frequently asked. Sued for a Gambling Debt.

Isaac Hazelhurst, an aged and influential member of the Philadelphia bar, is sued by a New York broker to recover the value of a check of $2,000 bearing Mr. Hazelhurst's signature. The check bears the indorsement of I. C. Oliver, the keeper of a New York gambling house, and the prosecution asserts that it was given in payment of a gambling debt. Mr. Hazelhurst testifies that the check was obtained by a swindler, who pretended to be the son of Anthony J. Drexel, and that on detecting the fraud he stopped the payment of the check. The case has excited much interest, as it has thrown a cloud over the fair fame of Mr. Hazelhurst, but which the trial is expected to clear.

"What do you want to know that for?"

"O, I was just wanting to know for fun."

"For fun, ch, Topnoody? Well I can't tell you in years exactly, but I'm just that old, that if I had been that old when you asked me to marry you, I'd have been five hundred thousand years older, before you would have got me.
